

151 Automation and computer-integrated technologies - involves the creation of a holistic system to train specialists with higher education at the first (bachelor's) level in the field of automation and instrumentation, aimed at mastering modern knowledge and skills in telecommunication systems, automation and computer-integrated railway transport technologies.

Graduates of the specialty can hold positions:

- on automation and communication at the undertakings of railway transport and the subway connected with development, production and operation of devices and systems to provide movement of trains;
- organization of production and technological processes at telecommunication enterprises;
- development and operation of software and hardware for automation and computerized control systems.